6. Histoire des Mongols depuis Tchinguiz-Khan jusqu'à Timour Bey ou Tamerlan. Four volume set.

C. d'Ohsson (Abraham Constantin Mouradgea d'Ohsson)

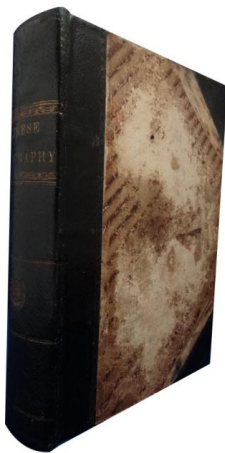

La Haye & Amsterdam: Freres van Cleff, 1834-1835.

Very Good. Half brown morocco; ruled raised bands, marbled boards Mouradgea d'Ohsson was a Swedish historian and diplomat of Armenian descent. This important work is a large expansion of his 1824 publication which was the first serious study of Genghis Khan. Kenneth Meyer Setton, A History of the Crusades notes "among the general histories of the Mongols, d'Ohsson remains unequaled. Avowedly or tacitly most later works rely on it." Two folding genealogical charts; large 1824 folding map of Asia in the thirteenth century to rear of volume four. Previous owner's bookplates removed from front pastedowns. A nice wide-margined set (many pages yet uncut) in a sound period binding; lxviii, 452; 651; 624 (1); 774; 8vo (22 x 15 cm).

8. Portfolio Chinensis: or a Collection of Authentic Chinese State Papers Illustrative of the History of the Present Position of Affairs in China. With a Translation, Notes and Introduction.

J. Lewis Shuck

Macao, China: Printed for the Translator at the New Washington Press by F.F. de Cruz, 1840.

First Edition. Very Good. Woodblock Chinese texts above English translation with exception of Appendix printed in July 1840 for which woodblocks could not be cut in time & where the Chinese characters were printed with the East India Company's movable Chinese type. Both types (though especially English) firmly bitten in to native stock. Shuck presents an unbiased (almost satirical) account of the futile Chinese attempts to rid themselves of British opium imports in printing their edicts, many of which were in effect supplications to the "rascally" English smugglers who "only know how to benefit themselves, regardless of the injuries they inflict upon our people!" By the time of the final document ("for the removal of the evils arising from opium") the government is reduced to a warrant on all English heads: "The taking alive of English barbarians...no matter they be soldiers or merchants, for every such individual, a reward, in cash, of one hundred dollars shall be given. For the murder of each one of the above, the fact being verified, one fifth of the aforesaid sum shall be awarded." Greater awards (up to twenty thousand dollars) were offered for English officers and ships. Nineteenth century title page rebacking with no affect to text. This copy that of R.H. Horne (his name to t.p.), collaborator with Charles Dickens in "The Great Exhibition and the Little One" (1856) contrasting Britain's exuberant display in the Great Exhibition with the restrained Chinese "Little One" in Hyde Park. Mid twentieth century half brown morocco; five raised bands; marbled end papers and boards; title, author, place & date to spine; previous owner's name to foot. Top edge gilt. A little underscoring and knowledgeable linguistic scholia with alternate translations. A complete text in a handsome yet supple half morocco binding. Cordier 1905-6 (q.v.); Lust 478.; 147 x 217 mm; xvi, 191 pages.

102. A translation of the Confucian [Yih king] or the "Classic of Change", with notes and appendix

Reverend Canon [Thomas] McClatchie

First edition in English of the I-Ching, the ancient Chinese book of divination, sometimes attributed to Confucius but actually much earlier, possibly with origins in the second millennium and so the most ancient text of Chinese Civilization. OCLC lists but eight copies worldwide. In McClatchie's view Qian and Kun represented the "God of Heathendom.

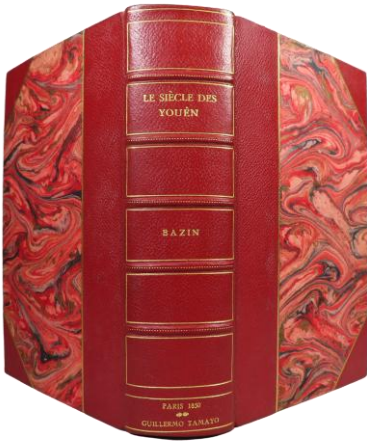

Qian or his Male portion... and Kun or his Female portion These two, he goes on to say,

'are enclosed in the circle or ring... known as the Supreme Ultimate or Great One, from which all things are generated.' His contemporaries 'ridiculed this decidedly sexual view (Shchutskii described it as the product of "pseudoscientific delirium'), but recent work by other scholars suggests its essential validity." (Richard J. Smith, "How the Book of Changes arrived in the West"). This copy very handsomely bound by Bennett of New York about seventy years ago in grained sienna morocco with title & author in double gilt ruled spine compartments; tooled hubs; top edge gilt. "Shanghai 1876" and owner's name to foot of spine. Preliminaries slightly foxed. xiii (vii -xiii of which are plates), xvii, 455, [i] (errata). Chinese and English on opposite pages. "Shanghai, Nov. 1876" in light pencil to front fly. Slight loss of paper to front board.
